

Hey girlies, (i guess i should say howdy, but i refuse to incorporate that into my vocabulary :) )

Woah this is cool! Impact is here!! I am so excited to get to know yall!! I can't wait to hang out with yall in college station (aka the greatest city on earth)! I had the best freshman year and I cannot wait for y'all to have an amazing one as well. Here is some stuff about me: I am a sophomore chemical engineering major from Grapevine, Texas. I LOVE music (making spotify playlists is one of my passions) (subtle plug kate.dickson30 is my spotify). I was in a FLO (freshman leadership organization (it's very much not official don't let the name fool you)) called FREE (the organization for relatively social engineers which I somehow finessed my way into lol). I absolutely love A&M and the people there. I have been praying for yall, that you invest yourself at A&M and that you are not afraid to get to let people in. One thing I wish I would have done earlier in my freshman year is to just ask people to hang out. I thought I was going to have more time the second semester to hang out with people and get to know more people in my organization or at my church, but I didn't and I am not bitter about that at all, I just wish I would have used the time that I had in order to get to know others. I am telling y'all this so that you don't push off getting to know the people around you. Talk to the people in your labs (bc those are probably the only in person classes lol), hang out with your neighbors in your dorm or in your apartment. This is going to be such a good year and I am so excited to get to be your friend and give you all of the minimal knowledge about college that I have! Please feel free to ask me any questions that you have! I am a nerd and study all the freaking time so if y'all ever want to have a study date let me know because that is probably my favorite type of hanging out so please study with me lol! (lol also sorry that was so long and got deep for a sec)
