

Hey fellas

I'm so full of joy knowing that the Lord has granted us a WHOLE SEMESTER together to experience His love and grace. Before I continue, I want you guys to know that I'm here to serve y'all, however that may look. The Lord has granted me the gift of being an Impact counselor to come to know a wonderful group of gentlemen who I have nothing but great expectations for!

Now a little about myself. I'm 22 (I know, I'm old), I love star wars and the outdoors, I come from a rather humble home from the small town of Graham, TX, and I love the Lord more than anything else (or I'm trying my best to). I'm a RPTS major which means I pay a lot of money to be on an intramural frisbee team. I've also been called to youth ministry (THANK YOU JESUS), so if any of you boys have questions or are feeling the call to ministry, please get a hold of me and I'll do my best to help.

Guys, I know this semester is going to be hard at times, and know that all of us will go through some hardships. But also know this: The Lord is our comfort. He is our light, our rock, our strength, our just deliverer, our friend, our shepherd, our creator and redeemer, and He is our salvation. For the God of the Universe to descend from His throne in Heaven to die for us so that we might have a chance at eternal life; It's hard to fathom the love the Lord has for His people. I pray we would find hope in that my friends. I pray you men find the same Jesus that I've come to know here in CSTAT. The Jesus that doesn't hang us out to dry, no matter how many times we run from Him. Find hope in that if you would. Find comfort in the Lord's grace.

I'm going to do my best to be here for you guys, but please grant me some measure of forgiveness when I fail to do so. If you guys need anything, please call or text me. I'll leave my contact info at the bottom if you don't already have it by the end of retreat. I know I might be a lil weird, but please don't be a stranger.

You guys are the bomb dot com. I know the Lord will work in wondrous ways during retreat and after, and I cannot wait to build relationships with you all. Life is tough nowadays, but I would ask all of you (myself as well) to count it all to joy. The world we live in is but a blip in the eternal kingdom that God offers each of us in heaven. We're gonna be just fine with the Lord on our side.

I love you guys,

Jonah
